I have attached a couple examples of a many company's internal worker contact info, personal email and cell. I can leverage this as a guerrilla way to disseminate the platform...

Also, are you launching this platform on a decentralized platform? With web3, a user/worker/producer proof of participation platform, each I-house app downloaded serves as an independent cross-chain shared master node that earns token rewards while it's installed...you can then design a number of reward mechanisms that incentives participation for workers initially download the app, but also to use the app, as well as reward management for implementing change based off workers sentiment and for things like adding sustainable practices, ect..

These are just a few ideas.

Talk to you in a minute.
